

COMMERCIAL INTERIORS

Commercial interiors provide designers with a unique set of opportunities and challenges. The larger scale of the project can translate to more opportunity for big design impact. Yet it is not uncommon for the build-out or renovation of a commercial space to be done under tight timelines, often while the area is still in use.

- 1 Integrated panel systems offer designers tools to create big impact with relative convenience. Decorative panels are pre-fabricated and pre-finished for ease of installation.
- 2 Reception and desking in commercial spaces is often built with HPL panels because of the material's performance. To add style, sometimes the panels are built into metal framing.
- 3 Depending on the end use, a wide variety of decorative surface materials, including HPL, TFL, 3DL, veneer, translucent resin, routed and painted MDF, can be used within a system. In addition to traditional woodgrain, custom logos and designs can be digitally printed to add unique areas of interest.
